Beth Lincoln, MSN, N.P., CTN-A
Beth Lincoln is the founder of Celedon!, a forward thinking company that provides cultural awareness education for healthcare professionals, educators and nonprofits. With a passion for diversity, Ms. Lincoln has traveled extensively, sharing her knowledge and motivating participants to embrace the significance of culturally sensitive and competent healthcare. Participants depart from her presentations saying, “I can use this information and make a real difference in the lives of my patients!”

Ms. Lincoln received her master's degree in nursing, and Women/Family Nurse Practitioner certification from the University of California in San Francisco. As a nurse practitioner, she has provided clinical healthcare and professional education for diverse populations as evidenced in the narratives given. She is a certified transcultural nurse, credentialed by the Transcultural Nursing Society, where she recently served as president. She also is an administrator of the Intercultural Development Inventory as certified by the Intercultural Communication Institute.

Ms. Lincoln encourages each of us to celebrate everybody as another unique opportunity to share the colorful history we all represent, and to embrace the rich fabric we all become by weaving our many diverse strands together. Her book, Reflections from Common Ground...Cultural Awareness in Healthcare, is an informative and interactive guide for health professionals.
